

PLEASE leave New Jersey's "Do Not Call" alone! Before this law, there was no peace. When my parents became new homeowners, they received multiple telemarketing calls daily; my husband and I have been spared because of the law. If this administration really believes in family values, then allow us to have dinner together uninterrupted by sales calls. If we have freedom of religion, why can't we have freedom from telemarketers' intrusions on our families? Do not penalize New Jersey citizens because their government puts their rights ahead of people trying to make a buck by bothering them.
